

1. Primary UX Audit Scope – Focus Areas

Use Microsoft Clarity to evaluate the following high-priority areas:

Product Detail Page (PDP)

- Is product information (title, benefits, ingredients, usage, reviews) easily accessible and scannable?

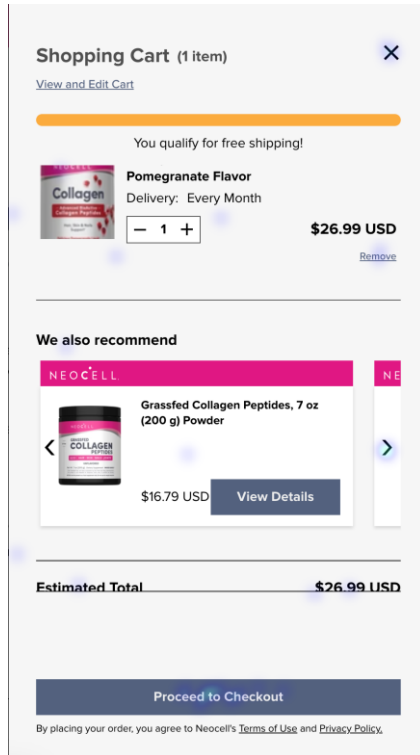

- Hero image is extremely oversized

- CTA is at 13% level
 - Banner size can be reduced
 - NeoCell text redundant
 - If there's only one size, consider removing for certain pages
- Are users clicking through tabs, expanding accordions, or ignoring key sections?
 - Auto-expand more details/ingredients
 - Consider using two column layout- move supplement facts/ accordion sections to the right
- Are “Add to Cart” buttons visible and clicked frequently?
 - Needs sticky CTA, Add to cart almost at 13% level
 - Reduce heading size
- Any signs of friction or confusion in product variant selection (flavors, sizes, bundles)?
 - For some pages, singular size may be confusing
 - No bundles on page- consider adding

Mini-Cart

- Do users interact with the mini-cart after adding items?

- Some amount of interaction (2% swipe through we also recommend, some heat around “remove” from cart)
- Are they abandoning after opening it?
 - Proceed to checkout button seems to have very little interaction
 - Pink NeoCell bars unnecessary- format of card can be changed to include three before pressing arrow
 - Image quality super low, should be bigger
- Is key info (product, price, subtotal, CTA) clearly displayed?
 - Baymard Institute recommends naming all “In between” pages for PDP/checkout (e.g. mini-cart) something like “Item added to cart” to make messaging clear
 - Can be seen as inadequate cart otherwise
 - Option to change delivery in mini-cart also
- Is the transition from mini-cart to full cart or checkout smooth?
 - Smooth

◆ Cart Page

- Are cart summaries informative and actionable?

Shopping Cart

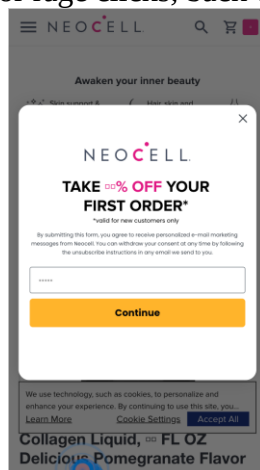

Item	Price	Qty	Subtotal
 Collagen Liquid, 16 FL OZ Delicious Pomegranate Flavor Subscribe success Delivery: Learn More	$20.99 $26.99	41	$1,106.59
Update Shopping Cart

You qualify for free shipping!
Summary
Order Total	$1,106.59 USD
Proceed to Checkout
By placing your order, you agree to NeoCell's Terms of Use and Privacy Policy.

- Still includes pink bars
- Update button needs to be removed
- You qualify for free shipping should be improved
- Are there distractions, missing information (e.g., shipping estimates, promo code field)?

Item	Price	Qty	Subtotal
 Grassfed Collagen Peptides, 21.2 oz (600 g) Powder Buy Once - Subscribe & Save 10%	$35.99	1	$35.99

- Could add slider to increase/decrease qty
- Edit button goes back to PDP
- Can add “are you sure” message when deleting items from cart to discourage
 - !! May cause friction in engagement
 - Alternatively have an [undo] button
- Look for rage clicks, back-and-forth behavior, or high exits here.

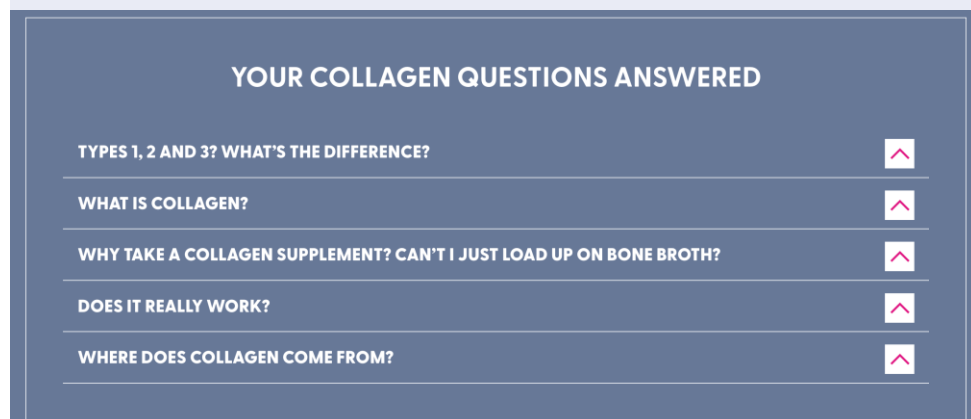

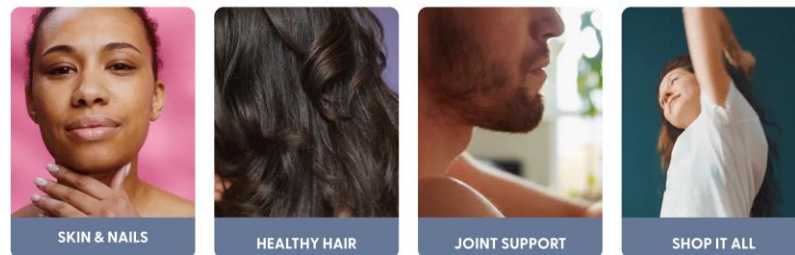

- Popup confusion- consider making it so clicking outside of the popup will close it

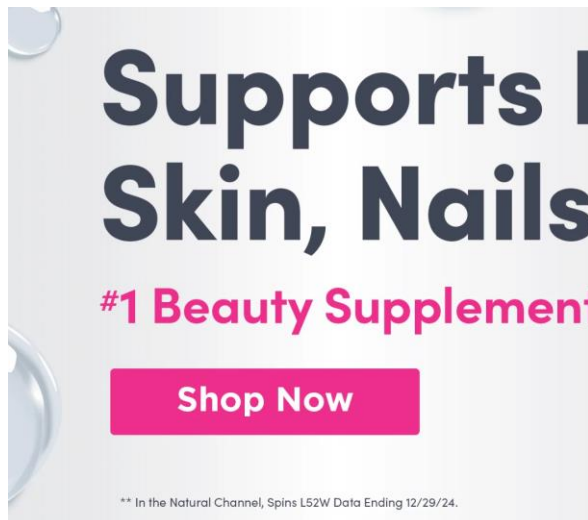

2. Secondary UX Audit Scope – Brief Review

Quickly scan the following sections using Clarity data and site navigation to flag any significant issues:

- Homepage – Hero messaging, trust signals, feature banners, CTA clarity
 - Lacks trust marks
 - Why does mini-cart open when icon clicked on from homepage etc? Better to limit to PDP- only .68% clicks on proceed to checkout button, no other interactions
 - Spacing issues

- Button looks weird

- button could be more interactive
- Collections Pages – Filter usability, category clarity, scroll behavior
 - Consider making filter sticky
 - Margins can be reduced, another product card added
 - Add to Cart button needs to be centered
 - Best seller tag blends in with site colors.. consider using alternative
- Search Experience – Speed, relevance, autocomplete, refinement options
 - Pretty fast, no major quirks/issues
- Account/Login – Ease of login/registration, visibility of account functions
 - My account button still opens in new tab

Summarize any major friction points, especially those impacting the path to purchase.

3. Competitor UX Benchmarking

Research 3–5 direct or aspirational competitor sites (e.g., Vital Proteins, Garden of Life, Nature’s Bounty) with a focus on:

Key Comparison Areas:

- Product Pages
 - Use of imagery, videos, reviews, sticky CTAs, comparison charts, or trust-building content
- Mini-Cart Functionality
 - Visibility, interactivity, upsell/cross-sell, checkout CTAs
- Cart Page Design
 - Layout, incentives (free shipping, promo fields), exit intent tactics

Optional Touchpoints to Note (only if something innovative stands out):

- Homepage hooks or loyalty program placement
- Category filtering or product quizzes
- Seamless login/account perks

1. Product Pages

Vital Proteins

- Places “Subscribe & Save” towards the top above the fold, with dynamic pricing comparison between one-time and subscription options cssdesignawards.com+7appstle.com+7LinkedIn+7.
- Uses celebrity endorsements (e.g., Jennifer Aniston) and product rating visuals to build trust appstle.com+1xgentech.net+1.
- Strong visual hierarchy includes influencer quotes, social proof, and flexible delivery frequency selectors appstle.com+1xgentech.net+1.
- Offers contextual product recommendations and express checkout (ShopPay, Amazon Pay, etc.) under a distraction-free layout xgentech.net.

Garden of Life

- Emphasizes third-party certifications prominently (USDA Organic, Non-GMO, NSF, Vegan, etc.), with icons reinforcing trust/value GroceryNutrition.org+8gardenoflife.com+8Open Food Facts+8.
- Product pages combine ingredient transparency with clear subscription pricing and flexibility (skip/cancel any time) Baymard Institute.
- Displays trust badges and satisfaction guarantees visibly to reinforce quality perception gardenoflife.comgardenoflife.com.

NeoCell

- Product page currently includes high-resolution bottle imagery and basic details on features, pricing, and subscribe vs one-time options.
- It lacks prominent celebrity or influencer endorsements and visual badges for certifications that competitors use to reinforce credibility.
- Uses vertical collapsible sections (e.g., "Ingredients", "How to Take", etc.), but many users may overlook them if not auto-expanded; Baymard research suggests this format reduces missed content compared to horizontal tabs (only ~8% overlook vs ~27%) Baymard Institute+3Baymard Institute+3xgentech.net+3.

2. Mini-Cart & Cart UX

Vital Proteins

- Mini-cart surfaces subscription upsells, recommended items, and encourages switching to subscription when adding a one-off item xgentech.net.
- Provides clear cart progress indicators in checkout, and offers express checkout options to reduce friction xgentech.net.

Garden of Life

- Mini-cart emphasizes free shipping thresholds, “60-day satisfaction guarantee” badges, and subscription upsell banners on product pages and in-cart gardenoflife.com.
- Clear messaging on delivery flexibility and expectations shown even before final checkout.

NeoCell

- May benefit from additional subscription upsell visibility in the mini-cart; current UX doesn’t push either subscription or complementary products as aggressively.
- Could increase reassurance by integrating recognizable trust badges (e.g. money-back, guarantee, shipping threshold messaging) within mini-cart visuals.

3. Cart Page Design & Incentives

Vital Proteins

- Cart page often highlights value of switching to subscription: comparative pricing, free shipping thresholds, and attractive discounts at checkout xgentech.net.
- Offers coupon code field in checkout — present but not distracting, preventing abandonment anxiety xgentech.net.

Garden of Life

- Cart reflects strong trusted-certification messaging, free shipping icons, and clear retry or cancel subscription language across flow gardenoflife.com.
- Visual layout balances incentive messages (promos, guarantees) with clean exit flow.

NeoCell

- Cart page currently offers subscription vs one-time, promo code field and guarantee note—but deeper hierarchy of shipping threshold, guarantee visuals, or subscription benefits could be strengthened.
- The design lacks comparison messaging (“subscribe saves X% vs one-time”) and could better align with best practices for reassurance and persuasion.

Area	Action Item	Priority
Product Page (PDP)	Reduce oversized hero image and redundant branding text	High
	Move supplement facts/accordion content to a 2-column layout	High
	Add sticky “Add to Cart” CTA to maintain visibility during scroll	High
	Auto-expand “More Details” and “Ingredients” accordions	High
	Add bundle options or value sets to encourage multi-buy	Medium
	Add trust badges and certifications (e.g., Non-GMO, GMP) prominently	High
	Integrate influencer or customer testimonials visually	Medium
	Use icons to highlight key ingredients and benefits	Medium
	Add side-by-side collagen format comparison chart	Medium
Mini-Cart	Improve image quality and increase size for product thumbnails	High
	Add subscription upsell messaging and toggle switch	High
	Include dynamic “$X away from free shipping” message	High
	Remove pink bars; redesign layout to show up to 3 items without scrolling	Medium
	Rename mini-cart header to “Item added to cart” for clarity	Medium
	Add live product suggestions (e.g., “Customers also bought”)	Medium
Cart Page	Add undo option for item removal instead of friction-inducing modal	Medium
	Improve “You qualify for free shipping” visual hierarchy	Medium
	Add clear savings messaging (“Subscribe and save X%”)	High
	Introduce quantity stepper (slider or +/- buttons)	Medium
	Replace “Edit” with inline quantity editing instead of redirect to PDP	High
	Remove unnecessary “Update” button	Low
	Offer subtle popup confirmation or undo when deleting cart item	Medium

